

Adam B. Edgecombe Joins Lippes Mathias Wexler Friedman LLP as Counsel in Florida Offices

January 17, 2020 | PRESS RELEASES

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, FLORIDA- Lippes Mathias Wexler Friedman LLP continuing its Florida expansion, is pleased to announce Adam B. Edgecombe has joined as counsel in its litigation practice group. He will be practicing in the Ponte Vedra Beach and Jacksonville offices.

Mr. Edgecombe's practice focuses on business litigation, with an emphasis on commercial litigation, construction litigation, landlord-tenant issues, and creditors' rights. He has broad experience in residential and commercial lease negotiations and disputes; construction issues, including successfully resolving pre-suit construction lien issues for both construction professionals and homeowners, lien enforcement, and contract disputes between contractors and subcontractors; representation of condominium and homeowners associations, including preservation and prosecution of lien rights and foreclosure defense.

"Adam has impressive depth and breadth of experience in litigation," said Christopher A. Walker, partner-in-charge, Florida. "He has a demonstrated ability to understand client needs and devise strategies that effectively represent their interests. We very much look forward to his contributions in the years ahead."

Adam has lived in Jacksonville for almost 40 years. He is a graduate of The Bolles School, where he currently serves on the Alumni Board of Directors. Mr. Edgecombe received his Bachelors and Masters of Science at the University of Florida and J.D. at Florida Coastal School of Law in Jacksonville. He is also active in several professional and trade organizations, including serving on various boards and committees for those organizations.
